Narrative begins on the following page.

On Wednesday, February 8, 2006, at 9:52 a.m., S/A Thomas J. Fassbender received a telephone call from Bill Leurquin. S/A Fassbender had previously attempted to contact Leurquin at his telephone 920-553-7399. S/A Fassbender previously interviewed Leurquin's brother, John Leurquin. It was during that interview that John Leurquin told S/A Fassbender that his brother, Bill Leurquin, had told him that a guy he works with hunts on the Radandt property and the hunter said he saw a pretty big blaze by Steven Avery's trailer on the evening of October 31, 2005.

Upon Leurquin making contact with S/A Fassbender, Leurquin advised he had no information that related to the Avery investigation. S/A Fassbender advised that his brother told S/A Fassbender that he had spoken to someone at work who saw a fire on the property. Bill Leurquin advised that he had heard something like that around work, but did not know who said it. Leurquin advised that he would check around work to see if he could identify the person who said they saw a fire and he agreed to re-contact S/A Fassbender if he was able to identify the person. The contact with Bill Leurquin was then concluded.
